Artist Statement

My work is a catalyst. Themes such as energy and chemical equations are the backbone of many of my works. Text and the limitations of language also have a heavy presence in both the process and final outcome. Whether through the entropy given off between a group of people and an interactive poem, or a sensor that reads your heartbeat to activate a coffeemaker, I think of art as a game that requires equal effort from the audience and myself. There is no set outcome, no right or wrong, only the product of a unique exchange within a given space that can never be repeated.
